from the editor-in-chief

This edition of Innovatus is a milestone in many ways. With expanding our editorial board, my vision is to improve the quality of the journal and expand the reach of the journal. As a result of this vision, we have managed to attract submissions from not only the Philippines but from other countries as well. This is but a small step forward but a most important one to make.

In the face of global challenges, innovation and the advancement of technology does not stop. This publication puts the spotlight on new and innovative works in the fields of machine learning and its applications in the business industry. It is my hope that the quality of the published works in this edition serve to reinforce my new vision for the journal. I extend my gratitude not only to the papers who were accepted but to those who submitted to the journal.

To all who made this issue happen, thank you for being part of the Innovatus family.
